

The page contains 12 sets of five horizontal lines each, arranged vertically. These lines are evenly spaced and cover most of the page's height, serving as a template for musical notation.

The image contains 12 identical sets of five horizontal lines, arranged vertically down the page. Each set consists of five parallel lines, with a slightly larger gap between the top and second lines, and a slightly larger gap between the bottom and second-to-last lines, mimicking the structure of a musical staff. The lines are evenly spaced and extend across most of the page width.